Estimate, not tax advice. This is an estimate for planning, not tax advice and not a tax return. It applies federal rules to the information entered in this app and leaves out anything it was not given. The "not modeled" list names the rules it is known to leave out and is not exhaustive. Your actual tax may be higher or lower. State and local taxes are not included. Confirm with a tax professional or IRS Free File before making decisions based on it. Computed for tax year 2026 as single.

Estimate notices (6)

- 5 deposit(s) have no tax category and were counted as business income subject to self-employment tax. If any are loans, transfers, refunds, paychecks or investment sales, categorise them: the estimate will fall. (affects about $11,500)
- 15 expense(s) have no tax category and were treated as personal, so nothing was deducted for them. Categorise any that are business costs: the estimate will fall. (affects about $352)
- Business income comes from 2 sources but the home office deduction is capped at their combined profit. If the office serves only one of them, the real cap is that business's own profit and the deduction may be overstated (Pub. 587, More Than One Trade or Business).
- Assumes the office space is used exclusively and regularly for the business as its principal place of business (IRC §280A(c)(1)). The engine cannot verify this.
- Scholarships and grants exceeded qualified education expenses. The excess is taxable income on Schedule 1 line 8r (not subject to self-employment tax). (affects about $7,366)
- Unearned income (taxable scholarships and other income) exceeds $2700. If you were under 18 at year end, or under 24 and a full-time student whose earned income was not more than half your support, and a parent was alive, Form 8615 taxes the excess at your parents' rate whether or not you are their dependent. This estimate does not compute that. (affects about $4,666)
